Andrew is a Certified Professional Co-Active Coach (CPCC) with broad experience coaching private clients and business leaders working in international corporations. Andrew is Managing Partner of a Luxembourg-based company specialising in executive and organisational leadership behaviour, particularly in the areas of personal impact, emotional intelligence, and effective communication.

Andrew received his coach training with The Coaches Training Institute (CTI), one of the few coach training schools to be accredited with the International Coach Federation (ICF). Andrew is current President of the ICF Luxembourg Chapter, through whom he holds the PCC (Professional Certified Coach) credential. He is also a member of the CTI faculty, delivering coach training programs globally in both English and French, as well as holding Certification and Supervisory roles supporting students undergoing professional accreditation.

Andrew's expertise in leadership coaching has been strengthened by his own focus on professional development. He has developed the cutting-edge skills required to unearth leadership strengths in others, supporting them as they break through their own self-perceived limits, and create powerful alliances and extraordinary performance in their own day-to-day lives.

In 2007, his commitment to his profession also saw him choose to leave the corporate world and undertake in-depth study and research in the fields of social science, psychology and management theory at the Australian College of Applied Psychology in Brisbane. He further strengthened his skills within the coaching arena by pursuing professional accreditation at the highest industry standards.

Line Management Experience

Andrew's early career was in international banking where he spent 10 years working as a sales and relationship manager in the securities divisions of Bankers Trust and Deutsche Bank. Managing a portfolio of institutional clients including ABN Amro Bank, Bank of England, Royal Trust Corporation of Canada, Dexia Bank, KBC and Barclays among others, Andrew went on to become Vice President of Sales for the Benelux countries.

Background

Andrew's career has spanned 15 years in a range of disciplines including banking, education and coaching / leadership-development. British by birth, Andrew has lived and worked in Luxembourg, the UK, Germany and Australia. His upbringing in central Europe has shaped his strong interest in cultural diversity, and he is fluent in French, with a strong understanding of German. Andrew is currently based in Luxembourg.
